SOVIET SATELLITE FIRST LAUNCHED

Citizens Group Formed Here to Support Library

A non-partisan citizens committee was formed here last night to carry the story of Monessen's proposed new municipal library to the voters of the city between now and election day, Nov. 5.

Donald C. Duvall

The group, to be known as the Committee for the Library, will urge approval of a $200,000 bond issue with the proceeds of which the City Council plans to construct a new public library building.

Heading the committee will be Donald C. Duvall, Pittsburgh Steel Co. vice president-industrial elalations and assistant to the president.

Duvall was host last night at a meeting of representatives of Monessen civic, veterans and fraternal organizations at Johnson's Restaurant.

About 25 persons were present and several other organizations sent word that, while they could not be represented at the first meeting, they would be glad to cooperate.

Progress Cited

Duvall said the basic purpose of the Committee for the Library would be to make available to every voter complete information about the library project and to solicit favorable votes on the bond issue.

Citing the progress which the city has made in recent years, Duvall said:

"We can no longer allow a handful of private citizens to provide the community's library service And, if we are to have the kind of library Monessen needs, we must make it a service of the municipal government."

Duvall said the Committee for the Library is preparing printed literature about the project and, through a speakers committee, will try to reach every organization in Monessen before election day.

"But most of all," he told the group, "we must have people like yourselves talking about the library, explaining the program and personally asking friends and neighbors to vote 'Yes' on the bond issue."

Harry R. Pore, Jr., chairman of the Civic Library Association's building committee, explained the plan by which the Civic Library, now a private operation, would be converted to a municipal function.

"The program has been carefully worked out with the City Council," Pore said, "and on the basis of expert advice we feel we are moving in a practical way to meet this community need."

Choice Location

Charles C. Throop, Civic Library president, explained that the city plans to construct the new building on a down town site selected by the present board of directors.

"We at first thought the library should be located in a residential area on a large plot with green grass around it," Throop said.

"But our expert advisers quickly showed us that that would be wrong and that the library must be in a good business location where it is readily accessible."

The site chosen is on Donner

Italy Ready To Help Fight In San Marino

SAN MARINO (UP) — Italy poised armored cars and truckloads of federal police on the San Marino border today, apparently ready to move into the tiny republic if asked by the Christian Democrats to help overthrow the Communists.

The Communist "government" showed signs of cracking under pressure of the Italian show of force and a growing food shortage.

The Italian forces moved into position late Friday night. It was the first show of overt force made by the Italian government since the Communists and Christian Democrats declared "war" on each other Sunday night.

Their nerves already pulled taut by hunger, seven Socialists said they would walk out of the Communist rump government unless power were turned over to the anti-Communists quickly.

That left the 18 Communist members of the dissolved Grand Council with support of only four Socialists. Before the Grand Council was dissolved last week the Communist-Socialist coalition comprised a majority of 30.

Fayette County Man Is Slain

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Thomas Wesley Brownfield, 27, Brownfield, Fayette County, Pa. was slain late Friday night by a blast from a large-bore rifle fired point blank by an unknown assailant.

Uniontown state police said Brownfield was alighting from his car about midnight at nearby Brownfield and was talking to a lady friend who was inside a house when his slayer released the fatal charge.

BIGGEST BOOSTER — Biggest booster for James R. Hoffa as Teamsters president at Miami Beach, Fla., convention was James R. Hoffa himself.

Hoffa's Union Closing Out Convention Today

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—The 1,400,000 - member Teamsters Union which often uses its power to aid other striking unions, had one foot out of the door of the AFL-CIO today, and the other in the hot water of a Senate investigation.

The truck drivers, faced with a choice of AFL - CIO censure or scandal-tainted Jimmy Hoffa for president, picked Hoffa — just as everyone predicted they would.

The union was to meet today to wind up the week-long convention that was climaxed by Hoffa's first-ballot triumph Friday.

A slate of Hoffa-backed candidates for eight vice-presidencies was expected to roll into office. Vice President Thomas L. Hickey of New York, an anti-Hoffa man, faced John O'Rourke of New York in the only contest scheduled.

New troubles cropped up before the balloting was over. The Senate Rackets Committee demanded the records of the convention credentials committee to check allegations that half of the 1,753 delegates were improperly seated.

Sen. John L. McClellan, chairman of the Rackets Committee which grilled Hoffa for four days in August and scored his poor memory, said the election was a challenge to Congress to clean out corrupt labor leaders.

The Teamsters was also put on notice by 13 rank-and-file members that new court action is being considered to set aside the results of the election.

Girard, Buddy Testimony Differs

MAEBASHI, Japan (UP)—Spl-3 William S. Girard and his former Army buddy gave dead opposite testimony in court today on whether Girard tampered with evidence after he killed Mrs. Naka Sakai.

Girard told Yuzo Kawachi, the Japanese judge hearing his manslaughter case, that he did not move a machine gun on Hill 655 at the Camp Weir firing range after a shell-casing struck the woman in the back.

Spl-3 Victor Nickel, however, swore that Girard did move the gun.

Nickel was with Girard on Hill 655 Jan. 30 when Girard fired the shell casing from the grenade launcher on his M1 rifle at Mrs. Sakai while she was gathering empty shells to sell as scrap.

State Is Fighting The 'Flu'

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Health Department said guardedly today it is "too early to know" if an influenza epidemic had gained scattered beachheads in Pennsylvania.

Health Secretary Dr. Berwyn F. Mattison said it is "impossible at this time" to predict what course reported outbreaks of an estimated 12,000 cases of "influenza-type" virus would take. He said reports indicated three western counties heaviest hit by the virus have not shown any marked increase in cases. The three were Westmoreland Allegheny and Beaver counties.

Health officials have carefully refrained from designating the outbreaks as Asian flu, pointing out laboratory tests are necessary before positive identification can be made. The number of confirmed Asian flu cases since last June was set at 26.

Thus far the flu outbreak has followed a "spotty" pattern, striking mostly school children and college students. It has been reported in varying degrees in 10 counties.

Visits Cancelled

Meanwhile, Dr. Mattison ordered visiting hours at state tuberculosis hospitals suspended except for emergency cases for the duration of the outbreaks. He said that no cases of patients contacting respiratory illnesses resembling Asian flu had been reported in the state institutions.

Asian influenza vaccine has been ordered for TB hospital patients and some have already been inoculated. The entire state has received only 527,081 doses of vaccine from the Public Health Service.

Friday afternoon the department held a conference with representatives of business, labor and private organizations to prepare for a possible epidemic of Asian flu. The group was told how they could aid the department on the local level in the event the new virus-strain attacks here in epidemic proportions.

Dr. Mattison urged the formation of community committees to handle emergency situations that might arise from a widespread attack. He said local committees would be the "best antidote to hysteria" should an epidemic occur. The health officials also suggested that lists be compiled of retired nurses and other persons capable of performing essential services during an emergency.

The Pennsylvania Medical Society said "monitoring committees" have been formed by county societies to be on the alert for serious outbreaks.

The meeting was attended by representatives of 15 organizations including the Red Cross, Salvation Army, stage agencies, Bell Telephone Co. and the state CIO Council.

Youth Charged with Motor Violation

Monessen Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka said today he will swear out information against J. Nelson Jackaway, Jr., of R. D. 2, Belle Vernon, charging him with violation of the motor vehicle code.

Kuvinka said he was traveling near Rostraver St. and Reed Ave. when he caught Jackaway going through a stop sign.

Kuvinka, who said the alleged offense occurred Tuesday, will make the charge before a local alderman next week.

Ready to Advertise Brownsville Bids

Bids for the understructure of Brownsville's new high-level bridge will probably be advertised later this month, it was learned today.

State Sen. William J. Lane said that designs on the sub-structure have been completed. The project must still be approved by the PUC and the Army engineers.

The structure will carry Route 40 across the Monongahela River.

Denies Purchase of Belle Vernon Store

Pharmacist Max Sherman today denied reports that he has purchased the Culler drug store in Belle Vernon.

Sherman said "I am only a pharmacist" at present.

There is a possibility he may purchase the store later, it was learned.

More Cases of Influenza Are Reported in U. S.

By UNITED PRESS

The number of known or suspected influenza cases across the nation today approached the half-million mark, with school children and college students leading the sick list.

Reports from across the country continued to fatten a report by the U.S. Public Health Service in Washington Friday which said 200,000 new cases had broken out last week.

Plus another 222,650 cases reported since the first attack of Asian flu last summer and new cases in the past few days, the total was close to 430,000.

Recent sudden outbreaks beat immunization officials and vaccine manufacturers to the punch, and many areas reported vaccine supplies exhausted and requests for innoculation unfulfilled.

Ike Praises Newspaper Boys For Service

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today praised the newspaper boys of America for their faithful service to the public.

The President issued this message addressed to the newspaper boys of the country:

"In appreciation of your faithful service to the public, your friends set aside one day each year in your honor. This year on Saturday, Oct. 5, I'm happy to join them again in paying tribute to your enterprise.

"Delivering papers has been part of the early chapters of some of America's greatest success stories. From this youthful experience, requiring the industry and loyalty of each newspaper boy—and girl—I know you are gaining a sense of responsibility which will serve you in good stead for the rest of your lives."

Russians Win Space Race; Send Up 184-pound Orbit To Beat U. S. to the Punch

U. S. to Speed Up Own Program

WASHINGTON (UP)—American scientists, caught flatfooted by Russia's epic launching of the first man-made moon, indicated today the United States may speed up its own earth satellite program.

Leaders of the U.S. satellite program also said that it appears Russia rocketed its heavy 184-pound satellite into a globe girdling orbit with a rocket "close to" an intercontinental ballistic missile.

That could mean Russia not only has beaten this country to the frontiers of space, but also to what has been called the "ultimate weapon" for modern day war—the ICBM. This country has not yet tested a successful ICBM.

American diplomats conceded Russia had scored a notable propaganda victory. The military implications of the Soviet feat were tremendous.

No Presidential Comment

President Eisenhower, who first announced plans for the U.S. earth satellite program July 29, 1955, was informed at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm of the notable Soviet "beat." He had no immediate comment.

American scientists involved in the U.S. satellite were at a cocktail party at the Soviet Embassy here when Moscow radio broke the news. They rushed back to their headquarters and set in motion a U.S. and worldwide tracking system to trace the progress of the Soviet moon.

When they came out of shock, the scientists said words adding up to fine, splendid, great. At heart they were sick. The United States had done 90 per cent of the talking about earth satellites. Russia, it turned out, had done 100 per cent of the performing.

Having performed, the Russians permitted themselves the luxury of a little boasting. What they have done, they said in Moscow, "will pave the way for space travel." Just last week they had forecast rocket flights to the Moon and Mars within a decade.

Reds Kept Silent

Both the U.S. and USSR undertook to send instrument-laden moons into space as part of the International Geophysical Year (IGY), a cooperative venture of 64 countries and some 10,000 scientists to strip away mysteries still veiling the earth.

All IGY nations are pledged to keep each other informed of their projects and their results. The Russians, however, cloaked their satellite program in secrecy—until Friday.

The U.S. moved quickly to remedy this. Some 160 "moonwatch teams" in this and other nations went to work.

Muscovites Late In Hearing News

MOSCOW (UP)—The Western world learned about the launching of a Soviet earth satellite before the people of Moscow.

The first news, a Tass news agency communique, was broadcast in English to the United States. Later it was beamed to Asia and then to Russia.

Here's How to Look for Red Earth Satellite

By UNITED PRESS

Here's how to look for the Russian earth satellite which will be whizzing through the sky at 18,000 miles an hour.

The best time to spot it is at dawn or dusk when the sky is semi-dark. There is a chance that it could be seen if it travels across the face of the moon at night.

The best instruments to use are ordinary binoculars or telescopes. Powerful telescopes won't pick it up because of their narrow fields.

Through optical instruments, the satellite will look like the faintest star which can be seen with the naked eye.

Keep a sharp eye out. The satellite travels so fast it may appear on the horizon for only seconds and chances of spotting it have been estimated at one in a hundred.

Mollet Making An Attempt to Form Government

PARIS (UP)—Former Socialist Premier Guy Mollet made a new stab today at picking up the pieces of another shattered French government. He doubted he would succeed.

The Algerian problem which caused the fall of Radical Socialist Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury's government Monday appeared to have driven France's many parties too far apart for Mollet to get a cabinet supported by a parliamentary majority.

"I must admit that I am skeptical," Mollet told reporters Friday when President Rene Coty gave him the first crack at solving the nation's 23rd and worst political crisis since World War II.

He said he hoped to be able to tell Coty by Sunday night whether he wants to try forming a cabinet to take before the National Assembly.

Millions Hear 'Beeps' on Radio

LONDON (UP) — The pulsating radio "beep" of the first man-made earth satellite signalled today to the world that man had crossed the threshhold into the age of travel through space.

The Soviet Union announced it had won the race into space by launching an earth satellite Friday, a 184-pound, 22-inch globe now orbiting the earth at 18,000 miles an hour, 560 miles up.

Millions of persons throughout the world heard the "beep...beep... beep..." rebroadcast today by local stations and realized that man had taken his first faltering steps into the new era.

Launching of the satellite was a tremendous victory for science. It was a more tremendous victory for Soviet propaganda to be able to trumpet to the world the Russians were the first to break through the frontiers of space.

Bolsters ICBM Claims

It bolstered Russian claims to be the first to have perfected an intercontinental ballistic missile for it might well have taken such a missile to launch the satellite on its flight around the world every 95 minutes—about 15 times a day.

John P. Hagen, the U.S. satellite chief, told the United Press in an interview in Washington the rocket that blasted the satellite skywards may have been "close to" an ICBM.

Hagen, head of Project Vanguard, urged a speedup of the American satellite program, now set for a launching next spring.

The Russians said more satellites would be launched later. They have said earlier the satellite marked the first step of travel to the moon and perhaps to Mars and Venus as well and said travel to the planets might well begin by 1965.

Timing Amazes Scientists

The speed with which Russia carried out the launching amazed scientists throughout the world. One had been expected during this worldwide geophysical year but not for several more months.

The secrecy of the operation annoyed some scientists for they were unable to warn in time their "moonwatch" teams which observe the satellite. Another minor annoyance was the fact the Russians changed the agreed upon radio frequency of the "beeps".

The Russian announcement, made first by Moscow radio in a broadcast beamed in English to the United States, said flight of the satellite can "be observed in the rays of the rising and setting sun with the aid of the simplest optical instruments, such as binoculars and spyglasses."

The first man to report seeing the satellite was Larry Ochs of Columbus, Ohio, one of seven moonwatchers alerted.

In the Massachusetts Institute of Technology a monstrous electronic brain began putting together the scraps of information which would

Incident Mars School Dance at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — A paratroop guard at Little Rock's Central High School felled a former student of Central with his rifle butt Friday night in an incident that marred a school dance.

The youth had been drinking and called the paratrooper "nigger lover," the Army said. The Army identified the youth as Robert King, 19.

The incident was the only serious one Friday in what has become a relatively peaceful situation since about 40 "hard core" anti-integrationist students walked out of Central High Thursday.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus, focal point of Little Rock's integration troubles, hewed today to a policy of "sitting tight and saying nothing" in his deadlocked dispute with President Eisenhower over withdrawal of federal troops. Intimates said the governor believes the pressure of public opinion will compel the White House to make the next move.

The Army said the incident occurred when the youth walked from the school dance and used abusive language in berating the paratrooper, one of a 24 - hour guard watching the school.

The Army said he grabbed the guard's rifle, but the paratrooper pushed the rifle butt into the youth's chest, knocking him to the floor.

Two faculty members witnessed the incident, and prevailed upon the Army to turn the youth to their custody.

Attendance at the high school rose Friday to 1,725 students out of a total enrollment of 1,990. White students who gathered on the front steps made no demonstration as nine Negro students came and went with their usual escort of troops. Heckling of the Negroes inside the school, which reached problem proportions earlier in the week, subsided in the face of stern disciplinary warnings from school authorities.

The suspension of 50 white students who took part in the abortive "mass walkout" appeared to have removed the most aggressive teen-age agitators from the school.

Steel's Fourth Quarter Boom Is Complicated by Other Factors

Pittsburgh Steel Co. today predicted that the usual fourth-quarter boom in the steel business may be complicated by other factors this year.

"For years, steel producers — Pittsburgh Steel among them — have looked to the fourth quarter months of October, November and December as the time the steel business takes a considerable upturn," the company observed in its official publication, Keystone magazine.

"It's entirely possible — even likely — that the same patterns will apply this year," continued the magazine. "The only trick at this point is finding some way to determine exactly how much steel orders will increase."

Pittsburgh Steel said there are some signs which indicate a considerable upturn.

"At the same time there are other indicators which seem to say business is moving 'sideways' instead of upward," cautioned the statement. "Therefore, demand for steel in the fourth quarter is going to be only slightly higher than the level of the past several months."

Pittsburgh Steel said the company's fourth-quarter sales may very well depend on how much quality steel can be delivered on time.

The company pointed out that its two operating blast furnaces at the Monessen plant "will have to continue to produce all the iron they can", especially until No. 2 Blast Furnace comes back into production after repairs.

"Maximum blast furnace production is essential to keep proper hot iron ratios at the open hearth," the company said.

In reviewing, other departments at the Monessen and Allenport plants, the statement had this to say:

"In the open hearth department, itself, there's a slightly different situation. September's illegal wildcat strike in the blooming mill forced the shutdown of four furnaces and put thousands of tons of open hearth ingots on the bank. In addition to this, the walk-out disrupted and delayed deliveries in several product lines.

"These ingots have to be rolled through the Blooming Mill before all open hearth furnaces could be restored to production. That's because the Blooming Mill has to be able to handle both cold ingots from the bank and hot metal ingots coming from the Open Hearth Department.

"While the Blooming Mill is

State Insurance Brokers Get Big Commissions from the GSA

HARRISBURG (UP) — Pennsylvania insurance brokers have received between $300,000 and $400,000 in commissions from coverage written on General State Authority projects and equipment.

A. J. Caruso, GSA executive director, turned over a special report to the authority's insurance committee which showed the agency carried more than 168 million dollars worth of insurance and paid nearly one million dollars in premiums. The report was given to committee chairman Andrew M. Bradley, state property and supplies secretary, and Internal Affairs Secretary Genevieve Blatt who had specifically requested it last Aug. 28.

Secretary Blatt had asked for the report to determine if the state's building and borrowing agency insurance practices were sound. She specifically asked for the names of brokers sharing in the commissions, how the insurance was placed and what types were used. She said none of the questions were answered.

Essential Data Missing

Miss Blatt said the report lacked the essential information requested. She asserted the GSA staff would be requested to supply brokers names and amounts received. If they do not comply, Blatt said she sould ask the insurance committee to demand the additional information.

The report also did not indicate for what years the premiums and commissions were paid. During the 1955-57 biennium the agency paid a $687,835 insurance bill for the two year period.

The report listed the total insurance carried and premiums paid on various types of policies and in numerous categories. The commissions ranged from 20 to 30 per cent.

Project insurance, carried on all the GSA's completed buildings, totaled $153,020,181. The insurance, carried with several companies, required $900,279 in premiums. The policies ran for various periods ranging from 1953 to 1961. Joseph Danza, Harrisburg, was listed as broker of record.

All-risk insurance on dams totaling $14,807,412 was placed through Hutchinson Riviers & Co., Philadelphia, the brokers of record. Premiums totaled $83,692. The policies ran for three year periods from 1955-58 and 1956-59 also to numerous companies.

Danza also handled $182,897 in liability insurance on office equipment and lesser amounts on GSA owned automobiles, theft protection and others.

Insurance practices of the agency have not been publicized since it was revived 10 years ago. The GSA places the insurance directly with brokers of record, who in turn contact the various companies.

Agents Unidentified

However, the insurance companies have maintained their codes require them to pay commissions to agents. Hence, the commissions on nearly one million dollars in premiums was split among still unidentified agents as virtual "windfalls."

The administration earlier said the insurance commissions were paid to Danza, who in turn, apparently sent the money on its way to the various agents. He has denied benefiting from the commissions while declining, unless authorized by the GSA, to say who received the money.

Danza is assistant manager of an insurance firm headed by Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, veteran Republican leader and one of six GOP members of the authority. Democrats hold the other six memberships.

The report did make one thing clear. It said the GSA could not insure itself unless it secured the support of two-thirds of the thousands of bondholders to change its formation rules. The possibility of the agency handling its own insurance had been one of the several questions raised by Miss Blatt.

Riot Squads Roam Warsaw

WARSAW (UP) — Communist militiamen rumbled through the streets of Warsaw in trucks and radio patrol cars today prepared to pounce on any resurgence of anti-government rioting that raged through the city Friday night.

At least 200 persons were reported under arrest and an uneasy quiet settled on the city.

By early this morning the streets were clear and trolleys and buses were running normally.

It was a sharp contrast to Friday night when thousands of Poles armed with rocks and paving blocks battled police for more than three hours. One estimate placed the number of rioters at 20,000.

Smoking Furnace

Firemen were called to investigate a smoking furnace at the home of John Zapora at 811 Washington St., North Belle Vernon, last night about 7:30. No damage resulted.

Jehovah Group Protests Alleged Police Brutality

Jehovah Witnesses of the Monessen congregation announced today that they plan to reach every home in the city with an account of alleged police brutality against witnesses in the Dominican Republican.

A. Galuppo, presiding minister of the Monessen congregation, also reported that the Witnesses have approved a petition asking the Dominican Republic to lift its ban imposed on the religious sect last July 25.

Galuppo said tte petition cited "specific names and places of police brutality that were personally authenticated by eight of the ten American missionaries deported August 3 from the Dominican Republic."

The petition was addressed to Generalissimo Trujillo, head of the Dominican Republic, and blamed the Roman Catholic Church for the government's action.

80 New Books Released at Public Library

Eighty new books were released for circulation at the Monessen Public Library during the month of September, it was reported today by Miss Vivian L. Drake, librarian.

Of these, 31 were juvenile titles; 49 were for adult reading.

Of the adult books, 16 were fiction. There were also several volumes of biography and reminiscences which make good recreation reading, Miss Drake reported.

Several books on "do-it-yourself" topics should attract special interest. Included in that group are these volumes:

How to Make and Use a Telescope; Complete Home Improvement Handbook Remodeling Guide for Home Interiors; Practical House Carpentry; Popular Mechanics Home Plumbing Guide; Candle Book Upholstery, Drapes and Slip Covers; How to Make Good Pictures; and Square Dancer's Guide.

Satellite

result in exact knowledge of the satellite's movements.

The size and weight amazed American scientists. The American satellite is about the size of a basketball and weighs much less. Scientists said the 184 pounds was astounding and indicated some such rocket as one powerful enough for an ICBM must have been used.

The first satellite is expected to remain aloft only for a week or two then when it descends into the atmosphere of the earth its great velocity over a protracted period will cause it to burn like a meteor.

The White House and Defense and State departments did not comment immediately but the unofficial attitude was that the development had no immediate effect on the balance of power.

Mayor Hugo J. Parente told the committee that the city administration is wholeheartedly supporting the project.

He gave assurance that, under city ownership, operation of the library would be completely nonpartisan and non-political.

According to the Mayor, the library would be operated by a board of five trustees appointed by the council. He said the council plans to make the appointments, once the bond issue is approved, from a list submitted by the board of directors of the Civic Library.

Following the meeting, Duvall and Parente went to a meeting of the Democratic City Committee at the City Hall. After hearing an explanation of the project by Duvall, the committee unanimously endorsed the bond issue.

Author Praises Pilot For Saving 13 Lives

TOKYO (UP —Author James A. Michener said today he lived "17 eternities in 17 minutes" before a U.S. Air Force plane with him aboard ditched in the sea near Iwo Jima Friday.

All 13 persons aboard escaped injury when the C47 set down in the sea. Michener, who won the Pulitzer prize for his "Tales of the South Pacific," was the only civilian aboard.

He arrived here today on another plane.

"They said a man reviews his life in the last few seconds he has to live," the writer said.

"Well, I had 17 minutes to review mine. And believe me, it was like living 17 eternities in 17 minutes."

He said only the skill of the pilot, Capt. A. K. Lambard, of Alabama, saved their lives.

"I was astonished at the way the plane was put into the sea," he said. "When we hit we were doing 85 knots (about 90 miles an hour). The waves were fairly large but the pilot went in just right."

One of the other passengers on the plane was First Lt. Emil J. Borra, of Beadling, Allegheny County, Pa.

Michener said one of the C47's two engines went out just after the plane took off from Iwo Jima and the other conked out 17 minutes later while they were trying to get back to the field.

The pilot ditched the plane two miles from the island. The 13 occupants got out in a life raft and were picked up shortly afterward by boat.

"The plane did not crack or split from the impact, which is a good testament to the handling, but it did sink within three minutes," Michener said.

"It was the nearest I have ever come to death."

Some Thoughts on Newspaperboy Day

THIS NEWSPAPER does not usually make much fuss about National Newspaper Week, which ends today, for somewhat the same reasons that we do not formally celebrate National Pickle Week.

"Weeks" of this kind are press agent devices designed to win friends and influence people favorably towards the product or service or institution to which the "week" is dedicated. But we submit that it is hard to make a pickle-lover out of an individual who does not happen to care for pickles by just telling him what a wonderful fruit is the pickle.

It may be possible to get some people to think concretely about the services rendered by the newspaper and perhaps to appreciate these services more than they otherwise might. But in this newspaper office we prefer to let whatever service we render to this community speak pretty much for itself. And we have countless ways, intangible as well as tangible, to know whether our readers and the community approve in general of the way we go about our work. As for those who may not approve, it is unlikely that we could change their minds by a full-blown celebration of National Newspaper Week.

THERE is one feature of Newspaper Week, however, in which we can join with honest enthusiasm. And that is Newspaperboy Day, which is today.

We enjoy putting aside our institutional modesty long enough to say that if there is any aspect of our operations which deserves the public's appreciation and support it is the training which we are able to give the young men who deliver the paper to the homes of our subscribers.

With all due respect to the many organizations which conduct fine programs for boys, none is able to give a boy quite what he can get in operating a daily newspaper route.

The newspaperboy performs an essential service for which he earns a substantial monetary reward. And the reward is directly related to the quality of his service, this including dependability, punctuality, courtesy and honesty among others. Through a required saving plan, The Daily Independent also gives its boys an object lesson in thrift.

All of this seems to us very much worthwhile, and we hope the reader will pardon the pride we take in our part of it. Our subscribers can help, too, by supplementing their weekly payments to the boy for his commodity and service by a word of encouragement and appreciation whenever these are appropriate.

The Sensible Way

THE LITTLE town of West Newton has for many years been an important step ahead of most of the communities of this district in the matter of raising funds for health, charitable and cultural agencies.

Without calling it such, the West Newton Community Chest has been operating on the United Fund principle. In just one campaign a year it raises all the funds which the people of West Newton contribute for these purposes. And nothing short of a major disaster can bring on another solicitation.

It is worth noting that at least two of the health agencies which maintain that they have national policies forbidding participation in federated campaigns are listed as agencies of the West Newton Community Chest. These are the Infantile Paralysis Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

In Pittsburgh and other cities these agencies have refused to accept allocations from United Fund campaigns and have conducted their own drives. But in West Newton they both accept the Community Chest gifts and also refrain from conducting separate appeals.

This is because the people of West Newton have steadfastly insisted upon using this efficient, sensible and fair means of discharging their charitable responsibilities. And they simply refuse to contribute to appeals outside their Community Chest.

The seventh annual drive is now underway in West Newton. The goal is $7,100, and we understand it is virtually certain to be reached promptly.

When, we wonder, will Monessen and some of the other towns of this area decide to follow this splendid example West Newton is setting for them?

Integration a Problem in Education

By WALTER LIPPMANN

As of Tuesday evening, the question was whether Gov. Faubus had played a trick on the committee of southern governors, who had come to the White House to negotiate for the withdrawal of the federal power, he crux of it all lay in the phrase "law and order," and whether the phrase meant the same thing to Faubus, to the four governors, and to the President.

Mr. Lippmann

Almost certainly it did not. I say almost certainly because Faubus is not a plain-spoken man. It would seem to have meant to him that what he did on Sept 3, when he used the Arkansas National Guard to bar the Negro children, was to maintain "law and order." In fact, of course, he was maintaining order but nullifying the law.

In his statement on Tuesday after the White House conference, there was much evidence, given the slipperiness of his character, that he was avoiding a plain and clear promise both to enforce the law and to maintain order. His statement can be used as a promise not to use the National Guard to bar the Negro children. But it is not an unambiguous promise to suppress a mob which might bar the Negro children.

Good Faith Assumed

It is clear that when the committee of governors informed the President that they are "authorized" by Faubus to say that he assumed full responsibility for "law and order," they fought in all good faith that his authorization was meant in good faith and that the words mean what in fact they mean

Because of his record, no assurances from Faubus could be accepted by the President in which every syllable and every comma had not been thoroughly scrutinized. The President was well advised to insist on a clear and precise promise. For there is a great principle at stake, and the only salvage the country can recover from the disaster at Little Rock is to see that this principle is defined and recognized.

The principle is that the National Guard may not obstruct the carrying out of the laws of the United States, and that it must be available, if needed, to enforce the laws. The Faubus affair arose out of the problem of integration. But its crucial importance has lain in the question of what are the rights and the duties of the armed forces of the several states No matter how long it takes, the President cannot make a settlement in Arkansas which sets up as a precedent the action of Faubus. There must be no doubt left that the troops of every state are dedicated to the support of the law.

Problem of Education

The President, we were told, would have liked to discuss with the governors not merely the specific question of the withdrawal of the federal power but also the general problem of integration. If there was any such discussion nothing has been reported about it. But after Little Rock, there can be no doubt in the President's mind that he must do more about the general problem than to hand it over wholly to the Department of Justice.

He ought, it seems to me, to treat integration as primarily a problem, not in law enforcement but, in education. It is a problem not only for Mr. Brownell and the Department of Justice, but for Mr. Folsom and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For the decision of the Supreme Court looks forward to what is in realty a revolutionary change in the educational system of a large section of the country, and also, in truth, of many communities outside the South.

The lawyers are necessary and are all very well. But the time has come to turn to the leaders of American education, and to invite them to accept their responsibilities.

Merry-Go-Round—

Ben-Gurion Yearns for Peace

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's note: Drew Pearson resumes writing his column from Washington on Monday.)

TEL AVIV — In order to see what could be done to bridge the Valley of Hate between the Arabs and Israel, I went to see the Prime Minister of Israel, David Ben-Gurion. I found him at the Hotel Sharon where he was spending a few days bathing in the Mediterranean.

Mr. Pearson

Mrs Ben-Gurion, who was raised in Brooklyn and whom everyone in Israel calls by her first name, "Paula," met me in the hotel corridor.

"You want to see the old man?" she said, and escorted me into his room. It was the same hotel room I had occupied last year. The Prime Minister, now 71, did not look old. He had been doing yoga exercises on the beach and at that moment was reading a thick volume of Greek philosophy as part of his vacation relaxation.

Ben-Gurion was interested in the fact that I had been to Syria and peppered me with questions. At one point I interrupted the questions to remark dead-pan. "How are you getting along with your plan to marry Mrs. Golda Meir to King Hussein of Jordan?"

Mrs. Meir, Foreign Minister of Israel is in her sixties, a lady of stern, unsmiling dignity. The king, a notorious playboy and ladies' man, is 23.

"Where did you hear that?" gasped the astonished Prime Minister.

"It's all over the Arab world," I replied, still dead-pan, "that you're trying to make peace with the Arabs by playing Cupid for King Hussein and Mrs. Meir. I'm planning to write a big story on it."

"But the King is still married," shot back Ben-Gurion, catching the joke and breaking into one of his broad, contagious smiles.

Fear of Israel

The rest of the interview was deadly serious. Reporting on my trip through the Arab states, I told Ben-Gurion that every Arab leader I met raised the refugee problem, and everyone also expressed genuine fear of the Israeli Army. They seemed to feel the Israeli Army was endowed with either divine or satanic strength.

"Are you sure it is fear?" Ben-Gurion replied. "I think it is also the desire to destroy Israel. They use the excuse of fear to nurture the desire to destroy us.

"If they are afraid, then why don't they sit down with us and negotiate a non-aggression pact?" he continued. "Let us have a treaty of friendship and peace We are ready at any time."

I told Ben-Gurion that while extremist Arabs would never rest until Israel was destroyed, I had met more moderate Arabs who knew Israel was here to stay They felt that if he made the gesture of letting the refugees come back, only a handful would come.

"Our whole problem," he said, "is migration. We are working to take care of people from all over the world, and I am afraid we shall have to take care of many more.

"There are 3,000,000 Jews in Russia and if Russia opens her doors to let them depart, I have reason to believe that one-half of them would want to come out What we will do with them I do not know, but we shall manage. We have managed in the past and we shall manage again.

"If Israel ever ceases taking in immigrants, then our reason for being ceases. People migrate to the United States to better themselves. They migrate here because they want to live in Israel.

"We could become self-supporting in a few years if we cut off immigration But if we cut off the people who want to come here we lose our reason for being."

It was plain from Ben-Gurion's answer that Israel would be too crowded to handle Arab refugees.

We talked at great length of the problems of the Near East, much of it off the record. As I was about to leave, I asked:

"What is Israel's greatest achievement during the past year?"

The Sinai campaign and immigration," Ben-Gurion replied. "We have won new security and freedom from attack: and we have taken in new immigrants from Europe and Egypt. We have housed them, settled them on the land. We are pushing ahead in the Negev the referred to the southern desert which is being irrigated). We are bringing our ships to Elath. We are laying a pipeline across the desert.

"These things we have done. They have not been easy, but we have done them."

"Last year when I was here," I reminded Ben-Gurion, "I predicted war between Israel and Egypt with France and England coming in and Russia and the United States staying out. What would you advise me to predict this time?"

"Peace," replied the Prime Minister without hesitation, "— as far as Israel is concerned."

I would agree with that prediction — as far as Israel is concerned But Israel alone does not control the peace of the Near East. And, judging from the temper of the Arab states, especially Syria, I fear that Ben-Gurion may be a modern-day Moses.

Like the prophet who led the people of Israel back within sight of the Promised Land but never enjoyed the privilege of getting there himself, Ben-Gurion has settled the people of Israel on a new, revitalized Promised Land, but may not live to see peace in the land which he has settled.

Salvation Army Lauds Service Of Newspapers

To the Editor:

This is National Newspaper Week — and a good time to remember just how much we depend upon our newspapers. The theme, this year, is "Your Newspaper Serves". And it does serve, in so many ways that we can scarcely imagine our way of life without it.

Look at some of the symbols of progress in your community — schools, playgrounds, hospitals, roads. The chances are that many of them came about as a result of stories carried in the pages of your newspapers. As a force, it has no equal.

The American people depend more and more upon their newspapers to keep them informed as they go about their tasks. Whether it is religion, education, law enforcement, community service—nearly every phase of this thing we call democracy is served by your newspaper.

Once again, on National Newspaper Week, the Salvation Army of Western Pennsylvania salutes the press and press associations of the nation, with a particular "thank you" to editors, reporters, photographers and all editorial personnel who have had a part in presenting the program and purpose of the Salvation Army to their readers. We recognize the incalculable worth of their support, and, on our part, we will ever strive to merit their continuing co-operation.

Paper's Stand in Judge Campaign Discussed

By HARRY R. PORE Jr.

The Daily Independent has long made a practice in its editorial columns of urging readers to be independent in their voting habits, to ignore party labels, especially in local elections, and to concentrate upon the individual qualifications of candidates.

Yet we find ourselves in the present Westmoreland County campaign advocating the election of Republicans to all three of the vacancies occurring on the common pleas court.

Because this appears on the surface to be a contradiction of our traditional policy, perhaps it calls for some discussion over on this side of the editorial page.

It isn't a contradiction, of course. The Independent is against machine politics, always has been and always will be so long as the present proprietors have anything to say about its policies. And when you talk about the Democratic party in Westmoreland County and assess the worth of its candidates for judge, you aren't talking about a political party in the normal sense. You are talking about a political machine cut in the spittin' image of Tammany Hall, which also uses the Democratic label.

So we aren't against Democrats as judges. In fact, two members of the present all-Democratic county bench, Judges Richard D. Laird and Charles D. Copeland, have in the past had The Independent's editorial endorsement—for whatever it may be worth.

Supported a Turner

Nor do we oppose candidates for local and county offices because they are Democrats. If I have to prove that statement, let it be recalled that we supported the late J. Calvin Turner of Rostraver Twp., brother of venerable Buddy, when Calvin ran for county treasurer and later commissioner. We wouldn't recommend Buddy to our readers as an acceptable candidate for dog catcher, but we thought Calvin was an efficient and conscientious public official, and we said so. Maybe that was the acid test of our policy.

But any day now you can expect to hear from the machine's candidates that newspapers just support Republicans. And that is usually supposed to be a complete answer to editorial criticism. We just hope those readers of The Independent who think seriously before they cast their votes will demand a better answer than that.

We are opposing the Democratic candidates in the judgeship campaign and recommending the Republican candidates for reasons that have nothing whatever to do with party philosophies. We are simply opposed to the control of the courts of justice by a political machine, no matter which label is pasted on it. And the only way to prevent that control in this election, as we see it, is to choose the Republican candidates.

No Republican Machine

Anyone who is worried that the Republican candidates might also be controlled by a political machine can forget about it. There just ain't no such thing as a Republican machine in Westmoreland County and there are no present indications that anyone will be able to put one together for years to come.

So while we have at times deplored the absence of effective Republican organizational activity as an antidote for the Democratic courthouse machine, I am bound to admit that, so far as the judgeships are concerned, this Republican weakness can be put on the credit side of the ledger. Provided, of course, that the Republicans can get themselves elected in spite of the admittedly superior power of the ~~Democratic~~ machine.

Communities which are governed by political machines for years on end need to be careful lest they come to accept the idea that might makes right. It doesn't, of course. And it's our view that the courthouse machine picked its candidates for judge, not with the idea of promoting the cause of justice, but because it thinks it has the might to promote three individuals who have served the machine faithfully and without question.

That is why we are saying that the independent voter who examines the individual qualifications and backgrounds of the candidates for judge has no choice but to prefer the Republican nominees

An Account of a Hunt for Ginseng

By JOHN H. DAY

Some years ago I found a tremendous stalk of ginseng on the steep rugged hillside, close in against the huge, decayed stub of what had been a monstrous black oak. The plant was in fruit and the bright red berries, shaped like lima beans, glowed so brilliantly in the afternoon sunlight that I could hardly have missed it. The spot is so secluded and so hard to climb to that I figured no "sang" hunter would ever find that lone specimen. I planted the five red beans in the vicinity and marked the place in memory.

During the weekend a driving chore took me along the road below that abrupt hillside and I decided to make the hot climb to see what were the results of my ginseng gardening. I parked off the road and looked across at the blue smoke of asters in riotous blossoming just above the roadside. These were lovely variety called the heart-leaved aster, quite common in open edgings throughout the countryside.

With firm grip on my hiking stick I bulldozed my way through the bastion of asters and brambles and saplings guarding the lower reaches of the hill. This hillside is really steep, proving to me early in the game that I could stand a little road work. I pulled and hauled myself up wherever a small tree offered a helping hand and where no such help was available scrambled along up the slippery terrain as best I could.

Ginger Still Green

There was a fresh breeze pruning away at the yellowed maples. The big leaves dropped off as the wind crooned its age-old siren song, spinning and side-slipping down to join the warm blanket on the forest floor. I reached a slope where the going was easier and walked up through a large station of wild ginger. The bright green leaves were a refreshing change from the dry, dusty half-dead appearance of everything else on that drouth-ridden hill.

I was suddenly aware of an ungainly "bug" of some sort climbing across the top of my bifocals. I reached up and captured a big walking stick, one of the most interesting of our insects. He had probably been shaken off one of the saplings I had used for support and had fallen right on my head. He was perhaps two and one half inches long. When I placed him on some twigs and looked away it took me some time to locate him again, so clever is his disguise.

Now and then an acorn would drop into the leaf mulch. Chipmunks were scolding all around me and I have no doubt they were up in the oaks snipping those acorns loose, although I didn't actually see any of the little fellows at this task. For such small creatures they can set up a tremendous racket, warning all members of the clan of any trespasser, be he hawk, or fox, or blundering countryman.

The hillside was alive with small feathered migrants who had stopped over to stoke up their tiny boilers before heading south on the next leg of their annual journey. I halted for a breather against a huge black oak and soon a chestnut-sided warbler was working over the branches not five feet from me. His bright eye looked me over casually as he picked up a few insects.

Flowers Stunted

The dry season has played havoc with the fall flower show. There are lots of blossoms, to be sure, but they are stunted, and the foliage is sere and withered. Wreath goldenrod was the only flower doing well up on the steep slopes. I ran into a band of chickadees and nuthatches and for a few moments the woods rang with the familiar feathered conversation I will hear all winter.

By careful maneuvering and some narrow escapes from disaster I finally made it across the face of that hillside to the spot where the ginseng should have been. A portion of the black oak stub was still there. There was no evidence of any digging, but there was not a trace of the big stalk nor of the five plants I had hoped would come from the seeds I had pushed into the loam. Some ambitious herb gatherer has made that torturous climb, and the rare ginseng is now gone from one more hillside forever.

PONY Expansion Surprise Move

That announcement by PONY League Commissioner Lew Hayes that the PONY program would be expanded to include 15 and 16-year-olds came as quite a surprise for Hayes and Prep League Director Jim Wardlaw of Munhall had been working closely together on following up the PONY play with Prep League ball . . . Perhaps the Preppers have agreed to go along and consolidate with the new set-up which will be operated separately from the current PONY League program . . . In other words, PONY Leagues will follow the same age limits next year as in the past with the 15 and 16-year-olds playing in an entirely new league to be known temporarily as PONY Grads . . . A separate tournament for eight teams will be held just like the PONY plan but the Grads will not stage their tourney in Washington, site of the younger lads' playoffs.

Notre Dame has two former head coaches on its staff in Bernie Witucki, ex-Tulsa head mentor and Bernie Crimmins, recently of Indiana U., so Terry Brennan shouldn't lack for expert advice . . . Just so he doesn't get too much advice as sometimes happens in such arrangements . . . Lou Kichinko (not Kichinkon as a typo error had it the other night) our traveling press aide, saw four football games last weekend and will match that this week . . . He witnessed the Pitt-Southern Cal clash last night and then headed for Mexico . . . St. Vincent College's crack grid team has yielded only 69 yards rushing to the opposition in three games and 26.6 yards passing for a total offense yardage of 96.3 yards.

Ex-Hurricane Gridder Sidelined

Bellmar's Paul Hoffman, who had been holding down the No. 1 quarterback slot on the Bethany College eleven, is out for the season with a broken collar bone suffered in the West Virginia Wesleyan game last week . . . The former Hurricanne ace had completed six of nine passes for a total of 155 yards, three of the tosses going for touchdowns, before he was sidelined in the third quarter . . . Another former Bellmar standout Glenn Shepler, who had the No. 2 fullback slot at Pennsylvania U. sewed up will have to sit out this semester due to a shoulder injury . . . Shepler, who is home, decided to come back in order to preserve another season of eligibility . . . He'll return to school for the second semester this year.

Westminster College will be out to lengthen its unbeaten streak to 23 straight games when the Titans battle Johnny Popovich's Waynesburg eleven at Uniontown Stadium this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock . . . The Jackets hold a wide 15-6-2 edge in the series between the two schools . . . In fact the only mark on the Westminster record is a 7-7 tie with Waynesburg in 1955 . . . Monessen's Ed Galaski will be one of the starting ends for the Yellowjackets tomorrow and will undoubtedly see action most of the game . . . California Teachers will travel to Indiana, (Pa.) to play the Indiana Teachers eleven this afternoon with the Fleming lads from this city in the starting lineup.

WPIAL Rules on Postponements

A ruling from the WPIAL football committee has straightened out the confusion over the postponed high school contests and when they will be played or rather how late in the season they can be played . . . Walter Bazard, Har-Brack High principal and chairman of the WPIAL football committee announced yesterday that teams in contention for football titles will be allowed until Nov. 23 to play off their games . . . This ruling will undoubtedly push the playoff game back unless only one team is in contention and no playoff needed which happened a couple of years back when Clairton won the title without engaging in a playoff contest.

Today's Sports Parade—

Coleman's Series Play Rates as 'Big' Surprise

By OSCAR FRALEY

MILWAUKEE (UP) — Three times you wouldn't have given a plugged nickel for the baseball chances of quiet Gerry Coleman—and neither would he.

Two of those times were when he was a Marine ace flying a total of 120 missions in two wars. The other time was in mid-June when the New York Yankees had a surplus of infielders.

But the lean, slender six-footer still is with the Bronx Bombers today and they are happy about it as they contemplate his World Series batting average of .600 against the pestiferous Milwaukee Braves.

"It comes out to three," Coleman grinned as he worked out at Milwaukee County Stadium in preparation for today's resumption of the Series. "Mostly they say, three times and out. I guess I'm just lucky."

Sure Of Trade

It's more than that for the guy who survived two wars and a mid-June upheaval in which the Yankees surprised everyone — including their own players — by trading manager Casey Stengel's "boy," Billy Martin, to Kansas City.

"I was sure that I was going to be traded," Coleman mused. "I wasn't playing very much and none of us actually believed that Martin was going to be traded. Then, too, I'm 33 and when I sit on the bench I have to accept the fact that the guys who are playing in front of me are faster and are sharper hitters."

But the fact remains that Coleman is typical of the "New York Yankees."

Not "Yankee Type"

In the old era of the fabled Bronx Bombers, they'd have just looked on Coleman as a suitable replacement for the bat boy. That was the age of such bruising blockbusters as Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, and even in the ensuing days of Joe DiMaggio the slender Coleman wasn't the "Yankee type."

But the Yankees have become a business ball club which specializes in machine-like victory. No longer do they deal in the melodramatics of a bygone era in which Ruth and his gargantuan appetite produced a bellyache heard round the sports world and Lefty Gomez kept the customers in stitches. There even is a strict order now that the players refuse to comment on anything slightly controversial.

W. Newton Plays at Trafford

Coach Andy Yartin, former Monessen athlete, takes his unbeaten (but tied) West Newton eleven to Trafford today to battle the Tommyhawks in an afternoon clash beginning at 2 o'clock.

West Newton opened with a 13-13 tie with Bentleyville but have copped two wins since with a 13-0 win over Rostraver and a 7-0 triumph over South Huntingdon.

Trafford has a 1-1-1 mark with a 12-0 victory over East Huntingdon, but losing to East McKeesport 13-0 and East Pittsburgh 13-13.

The Hornets have won the past two seasons by 19-12 and 7-0 count.

Coaches Yartin and his aide Bob Couchenour are counting on Otto Leone, top-notch quarterback rated one of the finest in the district to pace the Hornets today as he has in the three previous games this season.

The Hornets suffered a blow in the South game when Don Hannah, junior fullback, was injured in the closing minutes of the game and will be at the sidelines for a few weeks. He will be replaced by either Lander or Moorhead.

Washington received the second half kickoff and promptly started a march of 65 yards climaxed when Kimbrough bucked over for the score fro mthe one.

Kimbrough, King and Howell did much of the work until the ball got to the 6, from where Scalzo broke over his left guard, plowed through the linebackers and barrelled into the end zone for the touchdown.

Howell scored the final TD on a 12-yard reverse from Kimbrough.

German Rolls to 32-12 Win Over Bellmar as 10 Fumbles Mar Game

Hurricanes Lose Ball Six Times on 'Bobbles'; Teams Penalized 120 Yards

German Township's Uhlan grid machine began running on all cylinders at McClellandtown last night after dropping the first two games of the season and downed Bellmar's Hurricane squad by a resounding 32-12 margin in a fumbling, penalty-laden game.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the game from early in the game when left end Bob Holmes grabbed the ball which had been knocked out of Bellmar Quarterback Ron Coates' hands and raced 35 yards for a touchdown until Percy Cranford tallied Bellmar's second score on a pass with only seconds remaining.

Holmes' run came with only a minute and 45 seconds gone in the game. The extra point attempt was no good when a placement try was blocked and the score read 6-0 before many of the fans were settled in their seats.

Teams Fumble 10 Times

There were 10 fumbles in the game six by Bellmar, four by German, with the Hurricanes recovering all of theiir opponents' bobbles, the Uhlans nabbing five of the Bellmar miscues in ball-handling.

A total of 120½ yards in penalties was called by the officials, 25-½ against Bellmar, 95 against German. The 'Canes had difficulty in getting their new "Oklahoma-style" offense functioning and were assessed several "backfield in motion" penalties, German being called for illegal use of the hands and clipping several times.

Just as expected, German halfbacks Sam Sims and Bill Ruthland put on a brilliant running display with excellent assistance from superb quarterback Ed Spenik.

German scored a second time in the first period on a Ruthland to Sims pass good for 35 yards on a fourth-down play after Bellmar had held following recovery of a fumble by the Uhlans. Murnis Banner, a halfback sub, ran for the extra point.

A 26-0 halftime lead was built on two more TDs, one a brilliant 75-yard run on an option play by Spinek in the second period and another in the second quarter on a half-yard plunge by Ruthland to climax a 72-yard drive.

The count jumped to 32-0 in the third quarter on a three-yard plunge by Banner after recovery of still another Bellmar fumble on the 'Cane two after a punt put Bellmar in a hole.

Two Bellmar TDs

Bellmar scores came in the third and fourth quarters, the first on a three-yard plunge by Reggie Kostelac, rugged 'Cane fullback, to climax a 55-yard drive which saw a passing attack click with Petras throwing and neat running by Kostelac and Dennis Swiantek.

The second 'Cane score came with just seconds remaining when Percy Cranford took a 30-yard pass from Petras over the goal-line. Frank Burgess' kick attempt for the first extra point was blocked and a pass was incomplete on the second try.

Bellmar reached German's 30 yard line twice only to be stopped by fumbles.

The 'Canes led in first downs 14-9 despite the lopsided score.

Wayne Cipriani

Cipriani Wins Starting Berth At Lafayette U.

EASTON, Pa. — A sub only a few weeks ago, Wayne Cipriani, Monessen sophomore at Lafayette College, now finds himself the number one quarterback on the Maroon football team.

There appeared little prospect for Cipriani, or for that matter, for any other sophomore signal caller on the Lafayette squad, to get a starting berth.

Joe Bozik, Donora senior and one of the top quarterbacks in the East the last two years, was back for his third year and had the job of calling signals clinched. Bozik is the type of player who makes a team click, as he is an excellent passer, runner and kicker.

But Bozik suffered a leg fracture in a scrimmage and was lost to the squad, probably for the season.

Steve Hokuf, Lafayette coach, had to look to his three sophomore quarterbacks to take Bozik's place.

It became a contest between Cipriani and the two other sophomores, Merle Bainbridge of West Pittston and George Bender of Haddonfield, N. J.

The field narrowed to Cipriani and Bainbridge. Both are fast, both can pass, but both lack experience that can be acquired only under fire.

Bainbridge has 15 pounds on Cipriani, but the latter has more speed and when the whistle blew for the opening game with Muhlenberg, Cipriani was calling the signals. He performed well and helped lead Lafayette to a 20-13 victory over a stubborn opponent.

Cipriani is slated for a lot of action this fall. At this time he appears to have the edge for a starting post.

Cipriani is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cipriani, 401 Oneida St., Monessen. He entered Lafayette from Monessen High School and is studying business administration.

State-Army Meet Before 32,000

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —Penn State and Army clash today before 32,000 fans at Beaver Field in a game which may decide eastern gridiron supremacy.

State coach Rip Engle, refusing to make a prediction on the outcome, merely said his team was ready. In previous encounters between the rivals in a series which dates back more than half a century Army has won four games, State one and the teams have tied twice.

The game, a sellout for the past four months, is the first meeting of the teams at Beaver Field. Penn State is figured a slight underdog.

Coach Earl Blaik put his Cadets through a light 30 - minute workout at Beaver Field Friday.

The Cadets did not don uniforms for the workout but were put through their paces in sweat clothes. Only Bob Rudesill, a second-string quarterback was absent. He did not make the trip because of a sprained ankle.

In other games of western Pennsylvania teams, Washington and Jefferson played Allegheny at Meadville. Westminster, undefeated in 22 contests, met Waynesburg at Uniontown; Geneva, was host to John Carroll University of Cleveland (night).

Bethany, W. Va., was at Thiel; Bloomsburg State Teachers played at Cortland; California State Teachers was at Lock Haven (night), Grove City hosted Clarion.

Monessen Jayvee Game Postponed

The Monessen-Uniontown Jayvee game carded for Monday night has been cancelled, Athletic Director Everett Pancook announced today.

Originally set for Uniontown, it was mutually agreed to cancel the contest when it was found many of the players from both teams were still ill yesterday morning.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

Slow Down Backswing

One of the best ways to get a grooved swing is to make your backswing slow. A fast backswing causes you to hurry your downswing. There's no rush — that ball won't move.

One idea I have been able to put them slow their backswing is to over to some of my pupils to help have them count one, two, three, four" — as they swing the club back... Don't do this in actual play, but you can do it in practice... Before long, you won't have to count. Try it and see for yourself.

Remember, don't lift the club—swing it back with a movement of your shoulders. Take it easy and start the downswing deliberately, too.

It's Buhl vs. Turley as Series Resumes at Milwaukee's Field

By LEO H. PETERSEN

MILWAUKEE (UP)—This is it . . . a World Series in Milwaukee . . .and even the Word the New York Yankees might offer can't make it the saddest Saturday night in the lives of 700,000 people who've dreamed of this day for five frustrating years.

It is Bob Buhl (18-7) for the Braves and Bob Turley (13-6) for the Yankees and both managers Fred Haney and Casey Stengel are double-talking their lineups. It is "even-money" on the third game of this 1957 classic and 7-5 Yankees on the final outcome.

But, take the odds or leave 'em, the story is County Stadium, U.S.A. Here they've written baseball attendance history for five years and here they're writing more baseball history because these Braves, with their near-hysterical, frenetic fans, are the first National League western team to host a World Series since 196.

Going Carnival Style

In a phrase, an American sports classic that has been dominated by sophisticated easterners for 10 years is going carnival style in 1957.

There will, of course, be 5,000 fans at County Stadium, just as there might be for any Thursday afternoon game of the regular season, and they'll be helping to make this one of the richest World Series of all time. Rich in money and rich in the great new spirit that is sparking baseball's westward ho movement to California.

The Yankees themselves have been caught up in this atmosphere, as much as they'd refuse to admit it. The fact is they're in strange territory, know it, and will settle to go back to Yankee Stadium with a 3-2 lead. All ideas of a quickie Series have been shunted aside.

The fourth and fifth games are scheduled for this baseball - mad city Sunday and Monday with the scene shifting back to Yankee Stadium on Wednesday and Thursday if the full seven games are required. All games are nationally televised.

Two Fire-Ballers

In Buhl, Haney has named a rugged 180-pound native of Saginaw, Mich., who won 18 games and lost only seven for the National League champions. Basically a low fast-ball pitcher, Buhl has beaten the hard-hitting Brooklyn Dodgers 12 times in the last two years and always has been more effective in his home park.

Turley, 27, is Stengel's "bomber,"—the hardest throwing pitcher in the Series—and a quiet young businessman in the finest Yankee tradition. No less an authority than Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams calls him "just about the toughest autumn pitcher in baseball."

Haney, who worked his squad out for about an hour Friday, is expected to replace veteran Andy Pafko in right field with Bob (Hurricane) Hazle, the spectacular rookie who hit .403 over the last six weeks of the National League season. He may also sub slick-fielding, slice - hitting Frank Torre for long-ball threat Joe Adcock at first base. Otherwise, his lineup for the first two games probably will stand.

Stengel will undoubtedly return rookie Tony Kubek to left field and insert Jerry Lumpe, another sharp-hitting rookie, at third. Harry Simpson is expected to start at first base and Gerry Coleman probably will get the call over Bobby Richardson at second.

Bruins Get Hillman

BOSTON (UP) — The Boston Bruins have acquired defenseman Larry Hillman on waivers from the Chicago Black Hawks. The Bruins also announced that forward Jack Caffrey, who injured his leg in an exhibition game last week, will be sidelined at least five weeks.

Yankees Tab Milwaukee as 'Bush League'

MILWAUKEE (UP) — Veteran outfielder Andy Pafko, the Braves' most experienced World Series player, took issue today with the New York Yankees charge that the city is "bush league."

The aging right fielder said "It's an awful thing" to call Milwaukee "bush league," answering back a statement by a husky Yankee who tagged the city with that label as he, his teammates and manager Casey Stengel turned a cold shoulder to a civic reception.

"After all," said Pafko, "Milwaukee is a nice town and has shown that it's big league by drawing at least two million people in four of five years."

"That's more than the Yankees have done," he said.

Pafko said "Milwaukee wanted to welcome the Yankees and they should have been glad to get a nice reception in an opposing town."

Albert Davis, assistant secretary to Mayor Frank Zeidler, was at the Milwaukee Road station along with a crowd of several hundred to greet the eastern team when it arrived here Friday to work out at County Stadium.

The Yankees bundled from the train to three waiting buses without stopping to give or take a word. Milwaukee Judge Robert Cannon, a personal friend of Stengel's asked him to come from his bus and acknowledge the reception. The manager refused and Cannon boarded the bus with several newsmen.

Then a husky Yankee began hustling the newsmen off the bus and said the whole thing "is strictly bush league."

"Gentlemen," Davis called out as the buses pulled away," whether you know it or not, you've been welcomed to Milwaukee."

Panthers Win, 20-14 In Top '57 Showing

By ALEX KAHN

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Pittsburgh coach John Michelosen today hailed his Panthers' 20-14 victory over Southern California Friday night as the season's best performance by his team.

Sparked by flashy backs Dick Haley and Fred Riddle, the Panthers ran up a total of 309 yards against a Trojan football team that could get but one drive going the entire game.

The contest in Memorial Coliseum, witnessed by a night crowd of 43,489 fans, developed into a slugging match in the third period as three players were ejected and Southern California coach Don Clark brought his team a 15-yard penalty by dashing on the field.

Pittsburgh was penalized 142 yards, exactly the same yardage run up by their opponents, while Southern California received penalties of 112 yards.

The players ejected were quarterback Jim Conroy and the center Ken Antle for Southern California and end Jim Zanos of Pittsburgh.

"This was the most penalties inflicted on Pittsburgh since the last time it played Southern California in 1954," commented Michelosen. "They must have a different interpretation of the rules on the West Coast."

Clark would not comment on the rough play but explained he dashed on the field when he saw Antle on the ground with a Pitt player sitting on him and beating him.

Pitt's victory could be traced, however, to its powerful line built around center Charles Brueckman and buttressed by tackles Ron Kissel and Jim McCusker.

Pitt, controlling the ball the entire first period, came back with a 42-yard scoring drive after its first march of 59 yards was halted on the Trojan 13. Quarterback Bill Kalidan scored from the one. In the second period, end Art Gob blocked Conroy's punt and recovered in the end zone for a touchdown.

But when Pitt quarterback Ivan Toncic fumbled in the same period, Lou Byrd recovered for Southern California on the 14 and Rex Johnston scored from the 10.

Both teams scored in the third period. The Panthers got their touchdown after Haley intercepted Conroy's pass on the 27 and Toncic scored from the one after eight plays.

Brown - Parker to Renew Duel at Forbes Field

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Two old rivals, Pittsburgh Steeler coach Buddy Parker and Cleveland Browns mentor Paul Brown, meet again tonight as their respective elevens clash at Forbes Field.

A capacity crowd of 36,000 persons was expected for the game in which the oddsmakers favored Cleveland by 3½ points.

The game presented an unusual contrast. Parker is one coach who usually beats Brown. On the other hand, past records show that Brown has experienced little difficulty in defeating the Steelers.

Parker, while coaching the Detroit Lions, beat Brown 10 times, including seven exhibition victories, while suffering one defeat and a tie. Brown, however, has defeated Pittsburgh a total of 14 times, including two exhibition contests, while suffering two defeats.

Elizabeth Hricko Paces St. Leonards

Martha Druash, Vilma Gagatko, Helen Bender and Jean Fleming were also high bowlers.

Standings — St. Theresa 10-5, St. Cecelia 8-7, St. Elizabeth 6-9 and St. Ann 6-9.

Vulcan - Indiana Tilt Postponed

CSTC head coach Ted Nemeth made the announcement late yesterday after being notified of the action by Lock Haven officials.

Players on both squads have been affected by the sick wave, it was learned.

Deer Season Opens Today For Archers

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Game Commission today predicted a record turnout of about 30,000 archers during Pennsylvania's bow-and-arrow deer season which opens Saturday.

The eight-day season marks the seventh year of deer hunting for the modern Robin Hoods and this time they may bag deer of either sex, regardless of size. In previous seasons, only bucks with the required "rack" were legal.

The commission said the popularity of the sport has increased each year since 1951, when 5,542 persons purchased the necessary licenses. Last year over 26,000 archers were licensed in the state and bagged 224 deer.

Bowmen who kill a deer during the Oct. 5-12 season may not kill another deer for the remainder of the calendar year. As in other years, the archer-hunter had to purchase a special archery license in addition to the regular 1957 hunting permit. These could be obtained at his county treasurer's office for $2.15, or directly from the state for $2.

Jack Kuhn Paces BV Duckpin Win

BUSINESS and INDUSTRY

Old Cars Made Over Like New At Frank's Here

Mr. Motorist, it's time to have the kinks and dents taken out of that automobile of yours before cold weather sets in.

Besides, perhaps you want to buy one of those new jobs that'll soon be on the market, so you want yours looking saleable so you'll make more money on the trade-in.

It will pay you to let a skilled auto body and fender and paint man fix it up so it will look almost new again—and they can do it, too, what with years of experience and the modern equipment. Many cars that are badly wrecked come out of shops after skilled hands have worked on them looking like they have never been in an accident. It is amazing what can be done today in this respect.

Don't drive a dingy-looking car, either, when a new paint job costs so little. You'll feel proud, however, to drive in a car that has been newly-painted and looks like the day you bought it.

New paint preserves the fender and body, too, from rusting away.

Frank's Service Garage, 122 East Donner avenue, De Soto and Plymouth sales and service in Monessen and this area, also has a separate auto body and fender repair and car painting shop which has been in existence for some time and where you'll get skilled service.

Free estimates will gladly be given on this work.

And don't forget it might be a wise idea to drive to their repair department and have a skilled mechanic check your car and make the needed repairs before cold weather sets in.

A motor tuneup will give you better performance and you'll save on gas and oil.

Early Fall is considered one of the fine times of the year to do outside painting, so if you want to enhance the beauty of your home go right now to Derby's Construction & Supply, 443 Donner avenue home of Pittsburgh paints and get some of their famous Sun-Proof house paint.

If you are planning on doing it yourself, here is some good advice::

Outdoor Painting—Prepare surface. A clean, dry surface is required for a good outside paint job.

Wire brush entire surface to clean away grime and reveal spots where old paint is not solidly bonded to wood. Clean old paint that is badly stained by mildew or dripping water with a solution of one pound of trisodium phosphate to a gallon of water.

If clapboards show paint scaling, remove loose paint with a putty knife and wire brush. A chemical remover or blowtorch may be required to remove all the old paint if the entire house is scaling.

Nail down loose clapboards, then fill nail holes with putty. Where necessary, recalk joints around chimneys, doors, and window frames. Replace all cracked or loose window sash putty.

Painting Windows and Doors—If you paint the outside sash and trim before painting the body of the house, you avoid placing the ladder against freshly painted siding. Keep sash brush well loaded with paint so it will stroke, or cut a full-bodied line. Use SunProof House Paint Trim Colors or Waterspar Enamel for exterior wood or metal trim.

In painting doors, follow the same procedure as for painting interior doors. To get a neat, sharply cut line around hinges and lock plates requires careful painting. Often it will save time to remove hinges and lock plates before painting.

Painting Siding—Use Sun-Proof House Paint on wood surfaces. Do the highest places first. Paint one 3-foot band straight across the house. Then drop down and paint a second band. Don't flow paint on, but brush it out well after laying a brushful in two or three spots.

Paint clapboard edges first, then flat area between. Finish area you have started to a wall, door, or window before stopping. This will avoid noticeable lapping. Use a strong S-shaped hook so you can hang your bucket on outside of ladder beside you.

On masonry surfaces, such as stucco, brick, concrete, cement blocks and cement-asbestos shingles and siding, use Cementhide Rubberized Masonry Paint.

Painting Metal Areas—Use a wire brush to remove scale and rust from gutters, downspouts, and metal porch rails. If metal is showing, spot prime exposed areas with Ironhide Inhibitive Red Metal Primer before finishing. If surfaces are in good condition, repriming will not be necessary. For finish coats, use Sun-Proof House Paints. Allow at least 48 hours between coats.

A Few Important Don'ts—Don't paint if temperature is likely to drop below 50 degree F. Don't paint after a heavy rain until wood has dried thoroughly.

Don't start to paint too early in the morning. Give the sun a chance to dry off the surface.

Don't paint in a strong wind as the fresh paint may collect dust and insects.

Don't paint in the direct rays of a hot summer sun. Move around the house to avoid the sun. Paint does not spread well on a hot surface.

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has announced the appointments of three new members to the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure.

The appointees are

Dr. D. George Bloom, 320 Market St., Johnstown, to fill a vacancy; Dr. D. S. Newill, Breakneck Rd., Connellsville, to fill a vacancy, and Dr. Charles B. Hollis of 28 W. Schoolhouse Lane, Philadelphia, succeeding the late Dr. Raymond S. Leopold, Philadelphia.

Workers Buried Under Hillside In Washington

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP) — Three highway construction workers died Friday night when a rocky cliff thundered down on a highway near Snoqualmie Pass Summit.

Rescue workers today were "holding their breaths" hoping no motorists were buried beneath the tons of debris.

The Washington State Patrol said at least one other construction worker was injured seriously when the cliff broke loose from a mountain side and roared over a quarter-mile of US10, five miles east of the Snoqualmie Pass Summit.

Wally Maloney, supervisor of the North Bend, Wash., detachment of the State Patrol said, "We won't know for many hours —until the highway is cleared — whether any automobiles are trapped."

Maloney said the highway is "especially busy at that hour of Friday night."

"We just hope the quarter-mile section buried under rock — most of it 40-feet high—happened to be clear at 5 p.m., the approximate time of the slide," Maloney said.

The mountain side fell in an area where the highway was being widened to four lanes.

Your Health—

You Can Probably Solve Your Sleep Problems Yourself

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Millions of Americans do not sleep well. Trying to determine the actual number is like trying to count sheep; you lose track.

Some of these victims of insomnia need medical care of course. But the vast majority of them can solve their own sleeping problems.

If you are one of the multitudes who find sleep difficult, let me give you a few ideas to try before you go to your doctor with your problem.

I don't want to cheat your physician out of a fee, but you may be causing your own sleeping difficulties. If you are, chances are you can clear up the situation by yourself.

It's important to learn to relax for about half an hour or so before bedtime. You can't play a determined game of cards, engage in a heated discussion or quarrel, read an exciting book or watch a thrilling television program and then expect to go to sleep.

You need a letdown from your nervous tension before you can snooze.

If you feel you must read, look for a pleasant or even amusing story. A short story is better than a novel because you can complete it by bedtime and you won't spend much of the night wondering how it turned out.

Listening to a quiet musical program on the radio probably is better than watching some of those late, late movies on TV.

Now about those bedtime snacks. As far as your health is concerned there is no reason to avoid them.

Generally a couple of crackers and a glass of milk, or maybe a little fruit, won't keep you awake Milk, in fact, is soothing and might even help you get to sleep.

Drinking coffee, tea or carbonated beverages immediately before retiring is another matter. Almost all of them, you see, contain a small amount of caffeine. And caffeine is a stimulant.

The stimulating effect of any of these beverages doesn't last long — about three or four hours. But that may be long enough to make getting to sleep a pretty miserable chore.

Question and Answer

V. D: My child has severe case of scabies. What causes it?

Answer: Scabies is an infection of the skin by a mite. It can also be caused by coming in contact with an infected person, his clothing or bedding.

In this condition, small red spots appear which produce a great deal of itching. Usually scabies occur around the areas where there is hair and between the fingers.

In Hollywood—

John Wayne's Son Sets Acting Aside

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD, (UP) — Pat Wayne, raw-boned son of screen hero John Wayne, set aside his grease paint this week in favor of school books as he began his first year of college.

Pat, crew-cut and loose-jointed, a chip off the old movie star. He has a slow, easy smile and something of his father's drawl.

"I'm only a summertime actor," he said. "I enjoy acting, and have been told I have a natural talent for it. But my goal is to be an outstanding student right now."

Wayne, 18, recently completed a starring role, his first, in "The Young Land."

"My name does head the cast," Pat admitted, "But I'm co-starred with two fine established actors, Dennis Hopper and Dan O'Herlihy. That's the way my father wanted it when he negotiated my contract with C V. Whitney pictures. No solo star billing.

"It's also in the contract that I can work only during school holidays.

"Dad says the most important thing for me right now is to get a college education. His own education was hung up at the University of Southern California because of financial problems. Then he got a job as a studio worker and finally was tapped for a leading role in a picure."

Pat has entered Loyola University in Los Angeles as an English mayor. He realizes the senior Wayne won't let him act unless his grades are high.

"Dad made the USC football team as a lineman," he went on "But he wasn't All-American. Almost every actor who played football is automatically called an All-American.

"I played football at Loyola High and also went out for track and basketball. But I'm not going out for sports during my first year in college. I may hit the athletic trail later but not until my grades are up where I want 'em."

Before his appearance as a young sheriff in his new picture, Wayne handled minor roles in "The Searchers," "The Long Grey Line" and "Mr. Roberts."

"In all of them I was directed by my godfather, John Ford. He was the man responsible for advancing dad to stardom.

'My contract with Whitney Pictures extends throughout my college days. Whether I'll continue acting afterwards is up to the public—and the box office," Pat grin.

There's More to Home Buying Than Figuring Out the Payments

There's more arithmetic to buying house than figuring out the payments Take space, for instance Floor area is measured by the outside dimensions of the house, so that the actual living space inside depends on how much room is used up by the walls. A wood-frame, wood-sided house gives a bonus of about 40 square feet of extra space in the average-size home, since wood walls are less bulky That's enough to make a 10 x 14 foot living room four feet longer, or utility room, or for lots of closet space for every member of the family. And the bigger the house, the more space you gain from wood walls.

A good many young couples buying houses today are "space hoarders" They buy a larger house than they need at first The builder leaves one or more rooms unfinished — studs, rafters and subflooring not covered with finishing materials As the family grows, the young parents install wood paneling, flooring and the rest of the interior finish to carry out their own decorative ideas.

If a home buyer expects to make future changes in the interior layout of his house, it is best to buy one with trussed rafters or with plant-and-beam roof framing carried on a few posts

Interior walls may be rearranged as desired, since they are not required to support the roof, the National Lumber Manufacturers Association points out.

Builders today know how to make basements light and airy A house with a basement doubles the space of a one-story house at a cost only 10 to 15 per cent greater than for a house built on a slab

Many American architects visit Japan to observe beautiful temples and houses of wood that have endured for centuries Japanese ideas used in contemporary American house design include exposed beams and planking, natural wood finish inside and out wide overhangs and modular parts

When installing wood paneling it is usually best to start in the corner of a room and work toward the middle The final fitting can be made over windows and doors so that only a short board has to be ripped to fit The off-width is hardly noticeable

Wood's easy-on-the-feet property is one of the reason for its wide use in factories, armories and gymnasiums, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association

All select grades of softwood yard lumber take natural finishes well. The higher select grades are used for the highest quality interior and exterior finish C and D grades serve many finishing purposes just as well, especially when the natural markings of wood are desired for their decorative effect

In World War II, U S armed forces used a greater tonnage of wood than steel An army officer told lumbermen "You whipped time with timber You delivered the woods"

The human eye does not tire of natural patterns as it does of repetitive manufactured designs This is why wood has long-lasting decorative appeal, says the National Association

Year-round Care Preserves Life, Color of Rugs

Year-round care preserves the life and color of rugs and carpets

Homemakers often ask what is the yardstick for measuring the amount of cleaning necessary and how can accidental spots be removed without sending the entire rug for all-over professional cleaning

Mrs Miriam R Long, Westmoreland County extension home economist, reports there's no great problem about routine cleaning care for carpets, rugs and upholstered furniture Regular vacuuming and brushing and perhaps a professional cleaning once a year will usually keep them in top form.

But accidents do happen and often they leave spots When a rug or a fabric is stained, the spot should be removed at once—if it isn't, the stain sets and causes serious damage of the fibers.

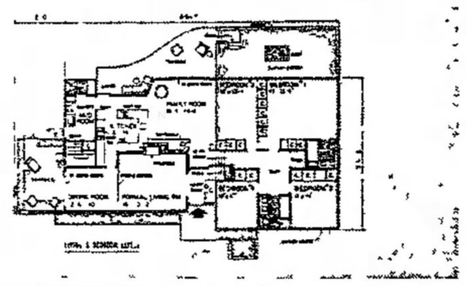
A synthetic detergent is often the answer Special rug cleaning supplies are available with directions for their use Upholstered furniture can be cleaned the same way.

Light Color Asphalt Shingles

More and more architects and remodeling specialists across the country are specifying white or light-color asphalt shingles for homes because of their heat-reflecting value

Asphalt shingles in white silver-gray, or one of the light pastel shades, literally "bounce" much of the sun's heat away instead of permitting it to radiate into the house

Used in conjunction with a pitched roof over a ventilated attic space and thick mineral wool insulation in the attic floors, light-color asphalt shingles are an effective aid to summer comfort



3 VERSION HOUSE—Today's Home, a new Fawcett Publication, shows how one basic plan can be built as a ranch, split-level, or a story and a-half house, in modern, contemporary, or traditional style. Above is split level version. Designed by architect Rudolph A. Materm of 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y., complete building plans and specifications are available.

Basement Is Coming Back with a Rush

The basement is 'coming back with a rush' and recent figures by the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that more than half the new homes in the U S have them says 'Today's Home' Magazine

The publication just distributed to newsstands states that the better the house, the more likely it is to have a basement" In sections like the northeast, it says 92 per cent of all new homes have basements and the only ones without them usually are the summer-cottage type

Three Factors Cited

The magazine says three major factors contribute to the growing basement boom :

'1—High building costs Almost everywhere it costs from $10 to $18 for a square foot of floor space above ground But basement floor space costs only about 1-10th of that When high building costs make it necessary to squeeze every dollar it's obvious that bargain basements' are a solution to inexpensive-to-build space

'2—Increase in family size Most American families now have more members, so they need more space They have considerably more time for leisure — for television viewing, hi-fi ping-pong, photography or woodworking hobbies Naturally, they want to enjoy these activities at home. Making full use of low-cost basement space is an obvious solution

'3—Modern materials and planning concepts Today's basement is no longer a dark, dreary place where things are stored and forgotten Modern ways to provide light, ventilation and access to the outdoors make it as attractive and livable as any other room in the house"

Garage Rooftop for Outdoor Living

Some city dwellers with little or no yard space have reverted to the adjoining garage rooftop for outdoor living space.

A louvered western red cedar fence built up five feet high will give privacy and let breezes move It need be built only on sides near street or neighboring homes

Cedar planters, benches and tables will give festive air and much utility Roof can be decked with 2x4s spaced one quarter inch for rain runoff.

Bathroom Is Changing Rapidly

The bathroom is changing more rapidly than any other room in the house It warns that unless you are aware of modern trends and practices, you may find yourself buying or building a house with bathroom facilities that are already dated and obsolete

"In a 3-or 4-bedroom house, a second bath or a half-bath is a must Lenders will not advance money unless there are a minimum of 1½ baths in a 3-bedroom house and two full baths in a 4-bedroom plan

"Builders have suddenly become aware that the bathroom is no longer a good place to trim the budget Instead they find that a few extra dollars wisely spent here can really 'make' a house If you are buying from a model, think twice before cutting out bathroom extras or signing for a stripped down version of the bathroom you see"

If you are contracting your own house, don't skimp on bathrooms, "Today's Home" says "In better homes, a bath for every bedroom is the rule If your house is of more than one floor, you'll be sorry if you don't provide lavatory and toilet facilities on every floor. In any well designed house, a half bath (lavatory and toilet) or a powder room (lavatory, toilet and dressing table) should be located where it is immediately accessible from the living room An extra half-bath can be a great asset if located where children can come in from outdoors and use it without tramping through the house

"If the budget won't allow that extra bath now, a money-saving practice is to rough in the plumbing for it when the house is built, and add the fixtures later as finances will permit"

Buyers to School

The Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, D C, conducts a "school for home buyers" where potential home-owners can learn about financing, space for family needs, and other problems of purchasing a house

Information on Moving Rules

If you're planning to do some of your own packing when you move into your new home, Mayflower movers suggest you have a good supply of "fragile" stickers on hand

By placing these stickers on cartons containing fragile articles you will be doing the mover and yourself a service Not only will it caution the mover to exercise maximum care when handling these cartons, but it will enable him to pack the cartons into the van without first peeking inside to see what is contained within

Dormers Give Added Space

Extra living space for a growing family can be obtained by adding a pair of dormer windows to an expansion attic Dormers increase head room and usable floor space in the attic, besides providing needed light and ventilation.

Windows of ponderosa pine are preferred for dormers and for most remodeling, since the clear wood can be painted to harmonize with the exterior of the house, and painted or stained to fit the interior color scheme

For ease of installation, wood windows are made in units with frame and sash combined, and are equipped with weatherstripping and hardware at the factory.
